

CELEBRITY & PRIVATE PARTIES

Celebrities are often involved in events as well as hold their own from award ceremonies and fundraisers to private parties and birthdays - the life of a celebrity event organiser is action packed!

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A CELEBRITY EVENTS MANAGER

There is no such thing as a typical day in the life of a Celebrity Events Manager. You're likely to be faced with regular tasks, such as communication, organisation and logistics, negotiation and marketing – but when it comes to working with or alongside celebrities, your event planning days will certainly involve enhanced levels of:

People skills and communication.

Security and risk assessment – often involves lots of additional planning, scheduling and attention to detail.

Marketing and publicity – you'll be expected to be hot on the PR and even work with the celebrity's own team.

Confidentiality – there's a high level of trust involved when a celebrity commissions an event manager or events agency staff – not only to manage a private event for them, but also to behave appropriately with their guests (such as not commandeering them for selfies)! Professionalism is paramount.

All our lecturers are event professionals and have plenty more advice on what's involved in the day to day, as well as how to make your way in this highly competitive industry.

CELEBRITY & PRIVATE PARTIES

Celebrities are often involved in events as well as hold their own from award ceremonies and fundraisers to private parties and birthdays - the life of a celebrity event organiser is action packed!

GETTING INTO CELEBRITY EVENT MANAGEMENT

Getting into celebrity event management relies heavily on the amount of experience you have. This can be hard to get, especially at the 'private' end of celebrity events. However, there are ways to increase your experience and chances of success:

Volunteer at general events which have celebrity involvement, such as charity awards and sports tournaments. Charities welcome volunteers as it helps them to keep overall costs low and maximise fundraising, and it can mean you gain some great experience and opportunities to network.

Volunteer at industry events which naturally involve celebrities.

For instance, our students and alumni have the chance to volunteer for the event team at The Brits: making a real difference to the smooth running of the event itself and to their own CVs!

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

An events role within many sectors such as charity and corporate can offer the chance to work with celebrities. Working with Event Agencies can also boost your opportunities in the world of celebrity events.

For talented freelancers with an eye for event management in the celebrity sphere, setting up your own event company is also possible.

Working with PR agencies which may be media, brand-development and entertainment-based offering celebrity-centred potential.

THE QUESTION IS HOW TO GET STARTED?

Before we deep dive into the details it is worth understanding the different (typical) stages of a career in events to know at which stage you might be entering.

The first step is just realising this is something that you want to do. It could be that you've organised a private party/wedding/charity event and just loved it. Maybe you have worked in an associated part of the industry like hospitality, music, project management or design and felt your skills would transfer nicely into events.

Now you need to bridge the gap. You need to get some experience. Get some volunteering under your belt. Build your confidence, knowledge and CV (we will be coming back to this one) You may also be able to get yourself an internship or a placement in an events agency/role/organisation.

The first real rung on the event businesses ladder is a junior executive role. Here you learn the basics and get involved with everything from laminating signage to designing core elements of 'the show', to budgeting, buying props and costumes, to working on site and to junior client/supplier management.

From this level the roles vary. You could graduate to an event manager, project manager up to a project director, account director, event director and finally producer.

Obviously, these roles can be accessed in any order. Within different projects and in different companies you may be involved in some and possibly all these roles. There are also many specialised event roles... for example the 'showcaller' - directing sound, lighting, film and action cues from an event 'bible' or script through the course of the experience. These special event roles take some years of experience and skill so you are unlikely to be involved with these at the outset, although every event needs someone 'calling the show' (even if it's only a private wedding).

GOING IT ALONE. SETTING UP YOUR OWN BUSINESS.

The other route you can take is to set up your own business. This is obviously a risky venture and not recommended unless you have had either some appropriate training (degree or postgraduate level course) or at least two/three years' experience.

Setting up and running a business is a totally different skill to being an event manager, but if you are still determined to take this route then ensure you are ready to meet all the demands not only of being an event manager but also marketing yourself and managing your business.

The route we recommend would be:

GENERATING EXPERIENCE, CONTACTS AND EVENTUALLY A JOB THROUGH WORK EXPERIENCE VOLUNTEERING AT EVENTS.

Both networking and volunteering are key to your success as an event manager. Event Academy offers a broad range of volunteering opportunities to our students and alumni to enable them to clock up the hours in the events world at a broad perspective on the different type of events.

This allows you to qualify in or out what each role or industry is really like while facilitating a broad range of experiences in diverse roles. Work experience through volunteering can also be a lot of fun. For example, we place students into The Brits every year enabling them to see a big global event going live as well as rubbing shoulders literally with celebs, rock stars and the music business royalty!

Networking is similar, in that you need to get yourself out there and generate the levels of motivation to do that. There are many on and offline experiences, meet-ups, events and hot dates in the calendar that can provide you with the opportunities to advance your career in events plus we run our networking events with major players attending like Lego, Secret Cinema, Bridelux and The Department.

NETWORKING

It's crucial that whatever stage of your career you are at, you get out there and get networking. Follow the key players in the industry online or on social media via hashtags like eventprofs. Go to networking evenings, meet-ups, event conferences, big shows like confex...keep in touch with your course mates, your lecturers and see what they are up to. Try to be creative in how you approach people who may have some influence and then make sure you are polite but to the point...just be you in any live or online networking. Follow, be inspired, then dive in and get involved. You've got to get in to get on.

So the opportunities for a career in events are many and various. The options are almost limitless. Just focus yourself on your skills, your passion, your experiences...then have a look at the following list and/or give one of the team here a call to see if we can help you with your career!

TOP 8 TIPS FOR CREATING A CAREER IN EVENTS...

Volunteer/do anything/start anywhere

Follow/network/use social media to build a network

Get a recognised accredited qualification

(the best you can afford ideally)

Don't start your own business until you are ready

(contacts, clients, funding, and experience)

(blog/vlog)

Capture and publish your experiences

Build a creative CV and target your search

Network, network, network

Do your own event, however small. You will learn the most from your mistakes.

CHAT TO US

Feeling inspired?
Why not live chat with our team now!